REGARDING THE NATURE OF CHRIST The Lord Jesus Christ is God Himself, the Incarnate Logos. Who took to Himself a perfect manhood. His Divine nature is one with his human nature yet without mingling, confusion or alteration; a complete Hypostatic Union. Words are inadequate to describe this union. It was said, that without controversy,

THE NATURE OF CHRIST - copticorthodoxy.com

8.3 The Nature Of Jesus. The word 'nature' refers to what we naturally, fundamentally are. We have shown in Study 1 that the Bible speaks of only two natures - that of God, and that of man. By nature God cannot die, be tempted etc. It is evident that Christ was not of God's nature during his life. He was therefore totally of human nature.

Bible Basics Study 8.3 - The Nature of Jesus

one view declares that “Christ took the nature of unfallen Adam”; and the other is that “Christ took our nature,”—the same nature you and I have. Or, to say it quite simply: One view is that Christ took our nature —and that is what we find in the Bible and Spirit of Prophecy. The other view is that Christ did not take our nature—

The Nature of Christ

This great man, Christ Jesus, son of man and son of God, worshipped the Father and needed redemption from his body which in every respect except one was like all other men. He came into this world as a man with a nature inherited from the first man Adam. He was mortal and subject to death. Yet he was without sin as Hebrews tells us.

The nature of Jesus Christ - Bible Education

...Christianity, one who believed that Jesus Christ’s nature remains altogether divine and not human even though he has taken on an earthly and human body with its cycle of birth, life, and death. Monophysitism asserted that the person of Jesus Christ has only one, divine nature rather than the two...

Two natures of Christ | theology | Britannica

Christ’s possession of the divine nature is taught directly in passages such as John 1:1–18. We can also look to episodes in our Lord’s life that reveal His divine nature to us. In today’s passage, for example, Jesus creates life, raising a young girl from the dead, simply by commanding her to live (Mark 5:21–43).

The Divine Nature of Christ | Reformed Bible Studies ...

Jesus Christ is fully man and fully God—He has the nature of both. He is a man, but He is more; He is also God. He is God, but He has forever joined Himself to a human nature.

Does Christ have two natures? | GotQuestions.org

Jesus Christ gave a series of signs that must occur before He returns. Evidently, the fulfillment of Christ’s prophecy would happen within the lifetime of one generation—once the signs relative to that specific prophecy begin. So Christ is coming back to this earth, but not right away. Not until these signs have occurred!
