Frederick Douglass Speech On Womens

Frederick Douglass was one of the few men present at the pioneer woman's rights convention held at Seneca Falls, New York, in July 1848. His support of women's rights never wavered although in 1869 he publicly disagreed with Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony who called for women's suffrage simultaneously with voting rights for black men, arguing that prejudice and violence against black men made their need for the franchise more pressing.

'If there is no struggle, there is no progress' - Read ...

Douglass's speech was called "the Lessons of the Hour." I recently read through it in Speeches of Frederick Douglass: A Critical Edition back in February this year. In many ways this remarkable speech addresses us even to this very day. Frederick Douglass may have been an old man by this time but he was not going to go quietly into the night.
