Jean-Louis Servan-Schreiber wrote those words in his original 1984 edition of The Art of Time, but they are just as true in our new techno-congested millennium. Now fully revised and updated, with a new chapter on time in the 21. "Opinion polls show that people complain more about a lack of time than a lack of money, greenery, or freedom.

Time and movement in art are closely linked. Time, however, is an abstract concept, with cultural and historical implications. It does not have the physicality that movement does. Time-based artwork is more ephemeral. Linear vs. circular, or cyclical time. In the concept of linear time there is a beginning (the past), and an end (the future). Between the two is the present, which is always moving forward.
